DRAFT NOVEMBER 2016

MetroPlan Orlando Complete Streets Program

Land Use Screening Memo

Introduction

The MetroPlan Orlando Complete Streets Program is taking a proactive approach to developing a region-wide system of complete streets, providing safe and comfortable travel choice through the region.

Based on input from the Complete Streets Task Force, draft land use criteria were developed to identify opportunity areas throughout the MetroPlan Region. The analysis defines criteria for determining where multimodal travel is in most demand. No one criteria will be able to determine that an area is suitable, but in the aggregate, multiple criteria will highlight areas with a strong demand for multimodal travel.

These draft criteria will ultimately be coupled with the transportation criteria to identify roadways that would most benefit from complete streets investments. The criteria draw from the established goals of the Program:

1. Create a connected network of streets, roads, and trails for all users, through new corridors and retrofitting existing corridors.
2. Provide safe and comfortable travel alternatives for vulnerable users of all ages and abilities.
3. Support redevelopment of and connectivity to activity centers.
4. Provide safe, comfortable, and effective walking and bicycling access to transit.
5. Provide effective transit service as part of street design and operations, as needed based on context.

This memo summarizes the data types and sources associated with the criteria used for the MetroPlan Complete Streets Program Land Use Screening. The attached documents include the maps and tables associated with each of the land use screening criteria for reference and review by local municipalities.

Land Use Criteria

Seven criteria were developed to identify areas where multimodal travel is in most demand. These seven criteria were:

- Transportation Disadvantaged Population (TDP) Index
- Existing Land Use
 - Employment Density
 - Population Density
- Supportive Future Land Use
- High Transit Usage Areas (using half-mile buffer)
- Higher Education Institutions and Access Areas (using one-mile buffer)
- Public Facilities (using half-mile buffer)

Transportation Disadvantaged Population Index

The Transportation Disadvantaged Population (TDP) Index is a measure of populations who have historically had significant unmet transportation needs or who have experienced disproportionate negative impacts from the transportation system. Examples of people who historically have high unmet needs include people who: cannot drive (due to age or ability), are experiencing poverty (cannot afford the costs of a car and/or transit), and people with limited mobility. This criterion has been used in a variety of regional active transportation, prioritization, and health plans through the Country.

The metrics used within the TDP Index were obtained from the U.S. Census 2013 American Community Survey (ACS). The index is the cumulative sum of percentages of each metric within the block groups and the data mapped includes the areas whose indices are among the top 20% in the region. The metrics used were:

- Population under 18
- Population over 65
- Poverty rate
- Zero-car households
- Disabled population

Maps of the Transportation Disadvantaged Index areas by county and region are included in the attached Land Use Screening Criteria maps.

Existing Land Use

For the existing land use screening, two sets of criteria were looked at – population density and employment density. The GIS data used for the population map consisted of data pulled from the U.S. Census 2013 American Community Survey (ACS). For the population density thresholds, the Federal Transit Administration's (FTA) New Starts and Small Starts Rating Criteria for population density were used. The minimum threshold to support Complete Streets and/or enhanced transit service was seen to be the Medium-Low rating of 2,560 persons/square mile.

In order to measure employment density in the Region, data from the U.S. Census' 2013 Longitudinal Employer-Household Dynamics (LEHD) was used. After aggregating the employment locations by census block group, the highest 20% of these areas (by employment/square mile) were mapped.

Maps of the top population and employment density areas by county and region are included in the attached Land Use Screening Criteria maps.

Supportive Future Land Use

When considering candidate Complete Streets projects, it is helpful to understand where local land use authorities have planned for incentivized economic development and geographically dense development.

Based on GIS data provided by the City of Orlando, FDOT, Orange County, Osceola County, and Seminole County, the following Complete Streets supportive future land use designations were used to create the future land use screening map:

Jurisdiction	Future Land Use Designation Used
City of Orlando	Urban Activity Center / Resource Protection Overlay

In addition, Community Redevelopment Areas (CRAs) were also drawn using maps obtained from each applicable municipality and agency in the MetroPlan region. Maps of the CRAs and Supportive Future Land Use areas by county and region are included in the attached Land Use Screening Criteria maps.

High Transit Usage Areas

To determine where Complete Streets implementation might be most effective, it is helpful to identify areas of high transit ridership. In order to do this, FDOT and LYNX data were compiled and mapped. This data included SunRail stations (with half-mile buffer), 2014 LYNX SuperStops (with half-mile buffer), and December 2014 LYNX top 10% boarding and alighting stops (with half-mile buffer). Maps of the high transit ridership areas by county and region are included in the attached Land Use Screening Criteria maps.

Higher Education Institutions and Access Areas

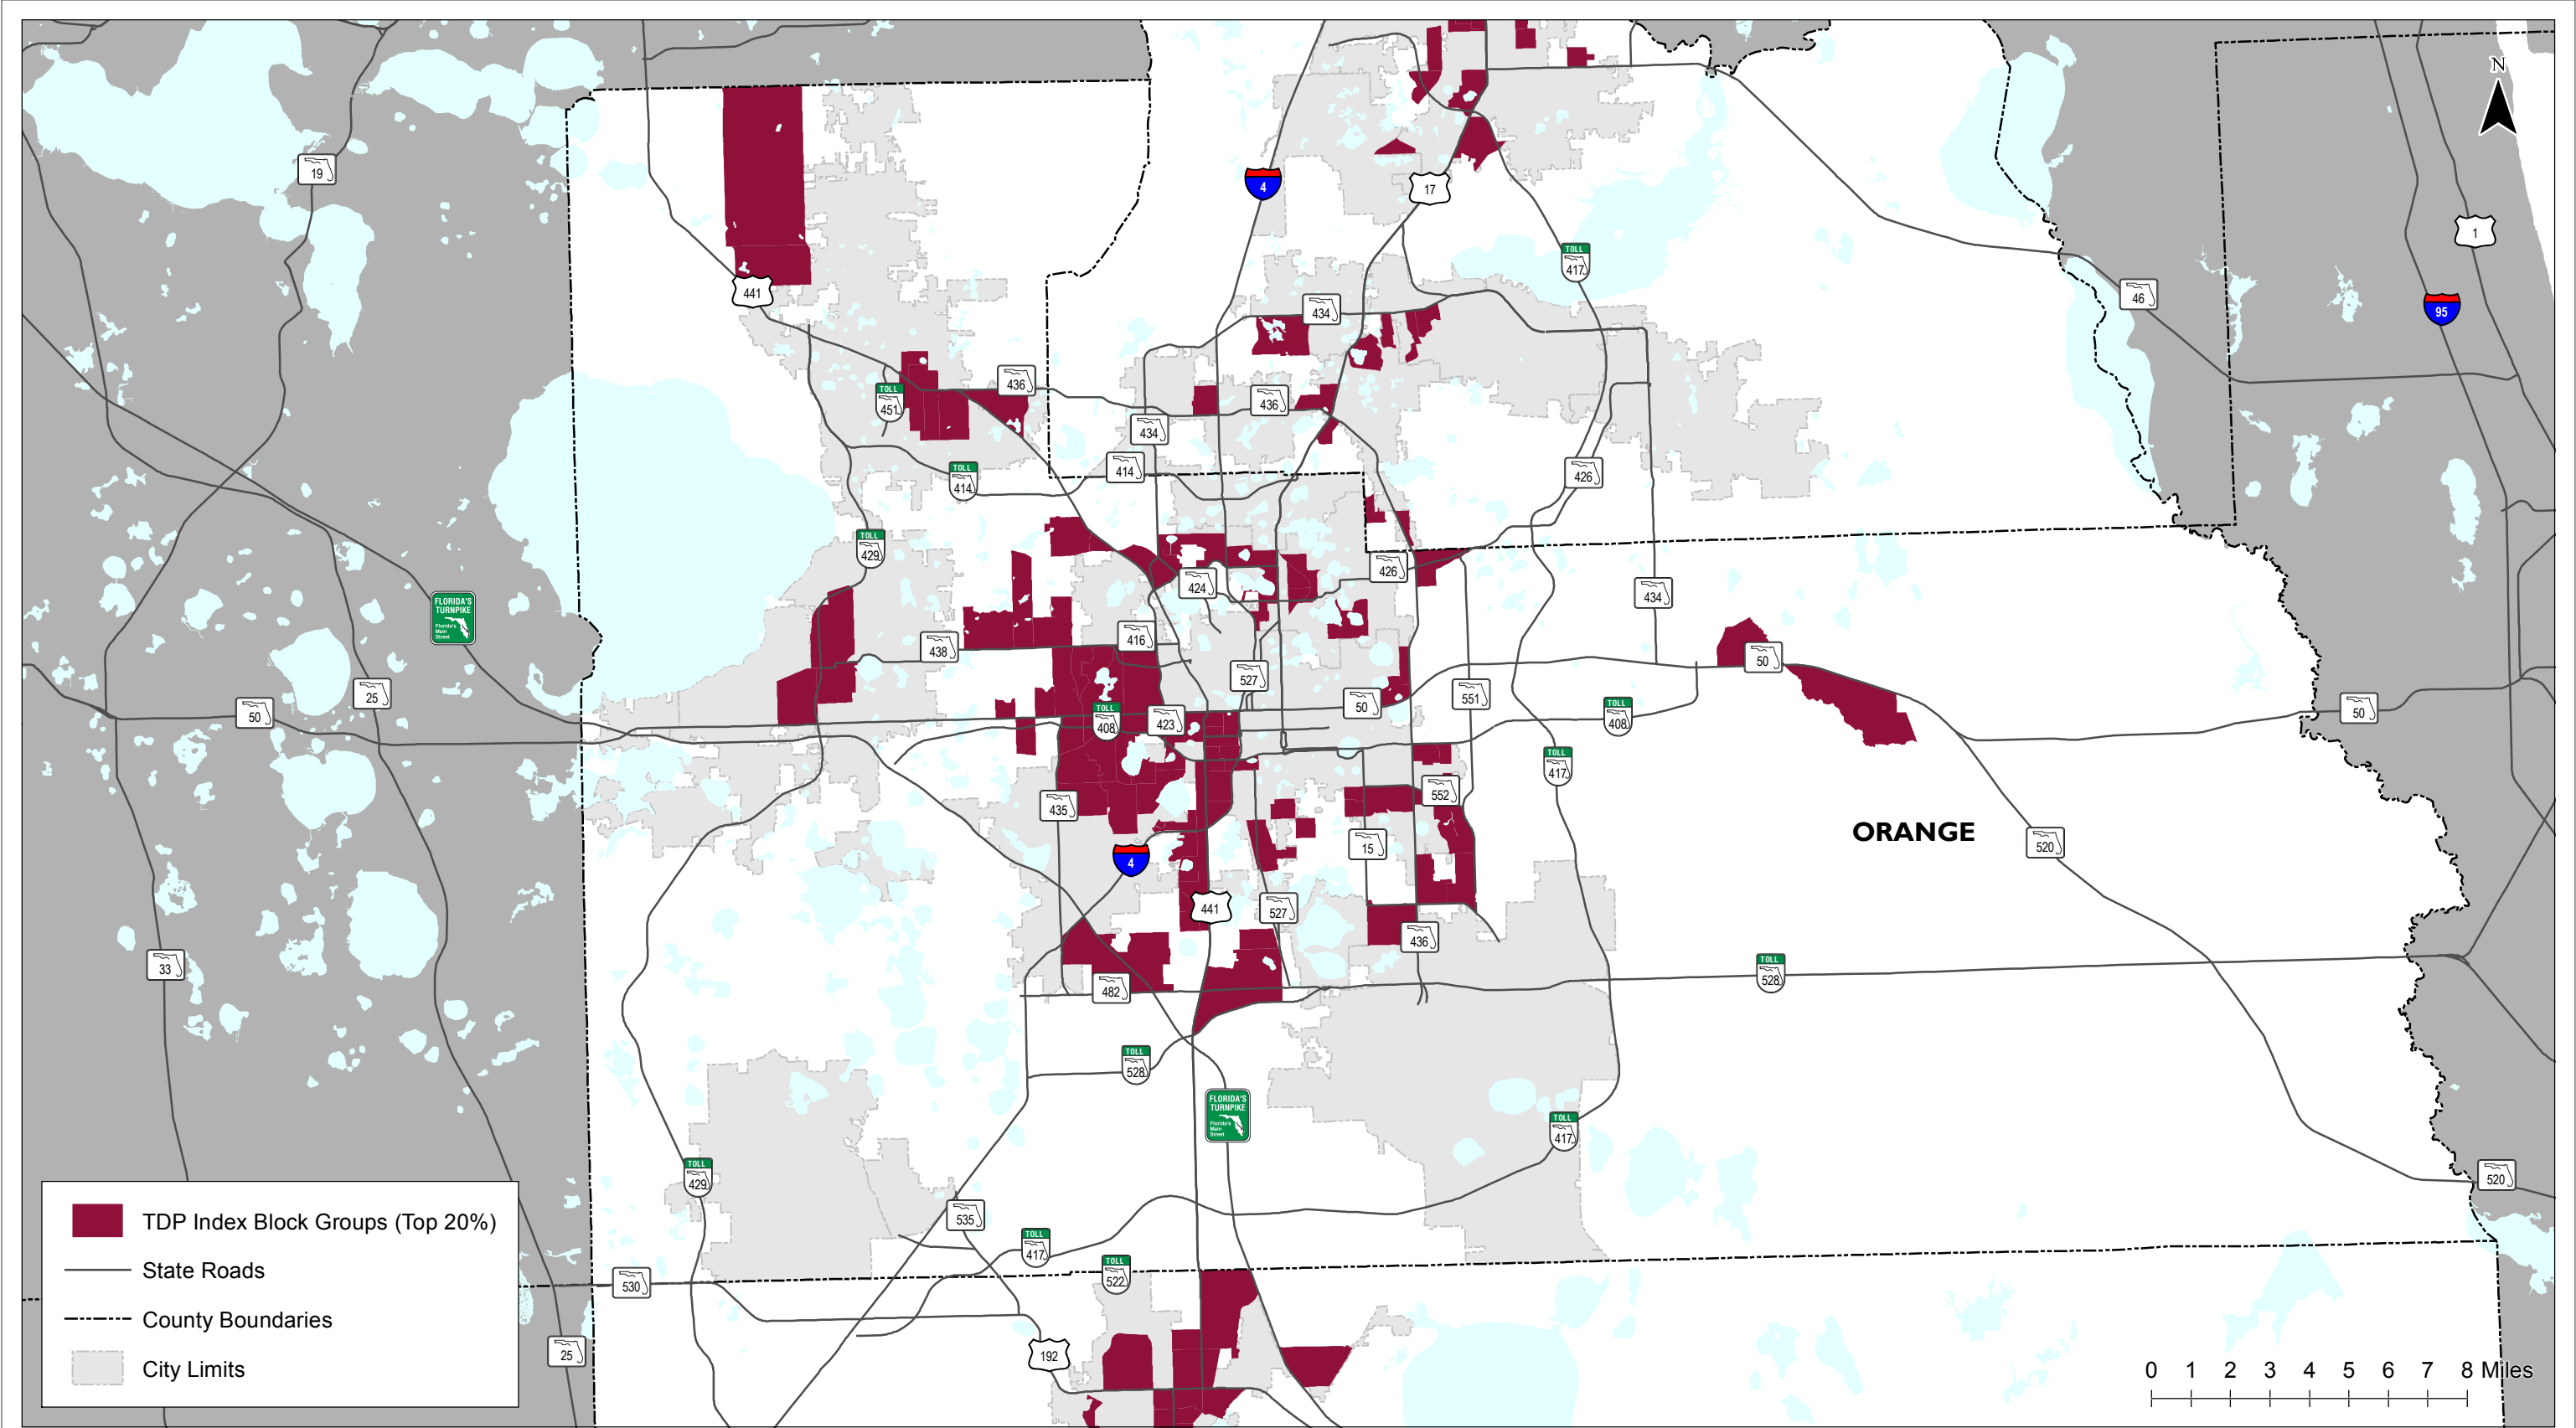

Utilizing GIS data provided by the FDOT; schools, universities, and technical schools are included in the land use screening. A complete list of colleges, universities, and technical schools included by county and region along with their associated maps, is included in the attached Land Use Screening Criteria maps. These schools were drawn with a 1-mile buffer to define the access area that will be considered in the analysis.

Public Facilities

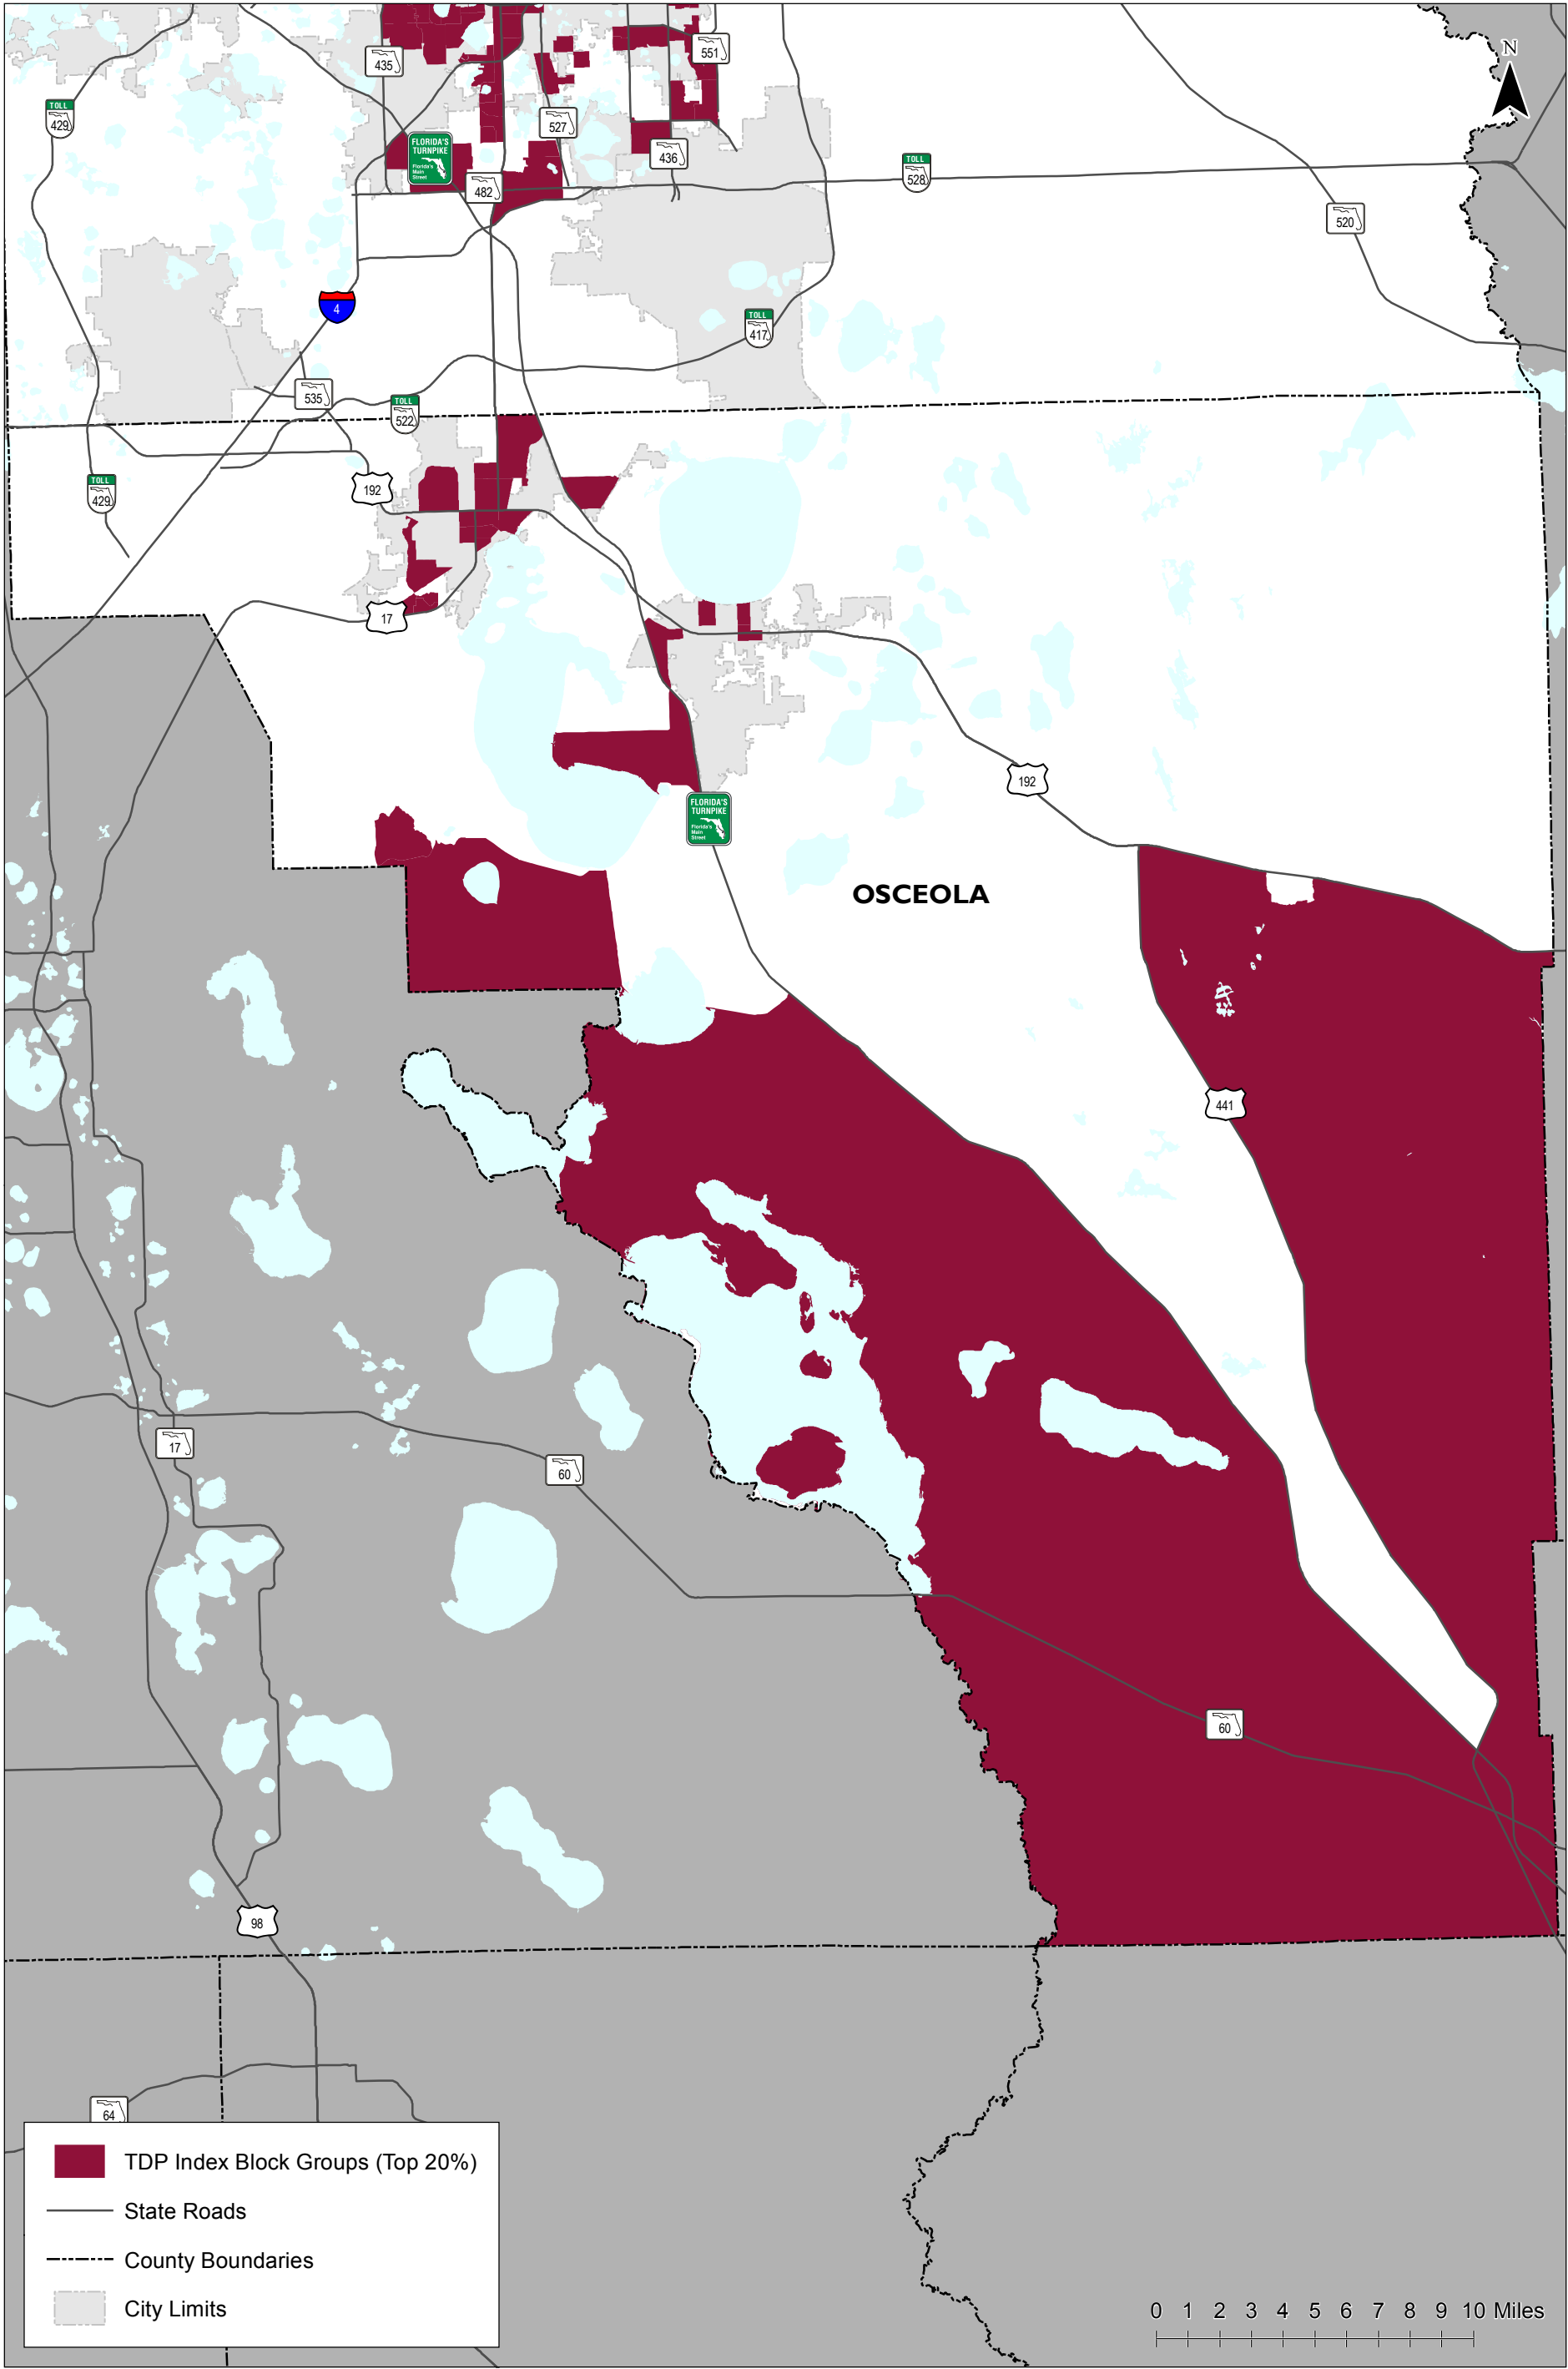

Utilizing GIS data provided by the City of Orlando, FDOT, Orange County, Osceola County, and Seminole County, the following public facility types are included in the public facilities screening map:

MetroPlan Orlando Complete Streets Program Transportation Screening Memo

Introduction

The MetroPlan Orlando Complete Streets Program is taking a proactive approach to developing a region-wide system of complete streets, providing safe and comfortable travel choice through the Region for all users.

Based on input from the Complete Streets Task Force, draft land use and transportation criteria were developed to identify opportunity areas and corridors throughout the MetroPlan Region. The land use analysis defines criteria for determining where multimodal travel is in most demand. The transportation analysis defines corridors that would most benefit from complete streets investments. No one criteria will be able to determine that an area is suitable, but in the aggregate, multiple criteria will highlight areas and corridors with a strong demand for complete streets projects.

The land use and transportation criteria draw from the established goals of the Program:

1. Create a connected network of streets, roads, and trails for all users, through new corridors and retrofitting existing corridors.
2. Provide safe and comfortable travel alternatives for vulnerable users of all ages and abilities.
3. Support redevelopment of and connectivity to activity centers.
4. Provide safe, comfortable, and effective walking and bicycling access to transit.
5. Provide effective transit service as part of street design and operations, as needed based on context.

This memo summarizes the data types and sources associated with the criteria used for the MetroPlan Complete Streets Program Transportation Screening. The attached documents include the maps and tables associated with each of the transportation screening criteria for reference and review by local municipalities.

Transportation Criteria

Criteria were developed to identify corridors that would most benefit from complete streets investments and were grouped to answer three general questions: how will it address safety issues, how well it supports existing infrastructure, and how permeable/compatible is the street with pedestrian improvements. The specific criteria used to answer these questions are:

- How will it address safety issues?
 - Sidewalk gaps
 - Bicycle facility gaps
 - Bicycle and pedestrian crashes
 - Vehicle crashes

- How well does it support existing infrastructure?
 - Connection to regional bicycle-pedestrian trail
 - Roadway connectivity (intersection density)
 - Transit routes along the corridor
 - Transit frequency of service
- How compatible is the street for complete streets improvements?
 - Posted speed
 - Traffic volume less than 20,000 vpd
 - Freight traffic less than 5 percent

Safety

Safety is a key component of the established goals of the Complete Streets program. Providing safe travel alternatives for all ages and abilities and providing safe walking and bicycling access to transit is crucial to the success of the Complete Streets program.

Sidewalk and Bicycle Facility Gaps

In order for safe, comfortable, and effective walking and bicycling access to be facilitated along the Region's corridors, sidewalk and bicycle facility gaps must be addressed. . The transportation screening used the MetroPlan Orlando 2040 Long-Range Transportation Plan (LRTP) sidewalk and bicycle facility inventory layers to highlight segments that did not include bicycle or pedestrian facilities on both sides.

Maps of both the sidewalk and bicycle facility gaps by county and Region are included in the attached Transportation Screening Criteria maps.

Crashes

Central Florida regional crash rates paint a sobering picture of the work needed to improve the safety for all modes, ages, and abilities on our Region's roadways. Both vehicle and bicycle/pedestrian crash maps were included in the transportation screening. This data was garnered from multiple data sources – Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) Crash Analysis Reports System (CARS) and Signal Four Analytics – to arrive at the most complete crash data set possible. The CARS system was created by merging crash data from the Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles (DHSMV) with roadway information from the FDOT. This database is updated annually by the FDOT and includes property damage only (PDO), injury, and fatality crashes on state roads in Florida. The Signal Four Analytics database was developed and maintained by the University of Florida in partnership with the Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles (DHSMV). Florida Signal Four Analytics is an interactive, web-based system designed to support the crash mapping and analysis needs of law enforcement, traffic engineering, transportation planning agencies, and research institutions in Florida. The database includes geo-located crash data from both state and local agencies.

The vehicle crash rate map used 2014 data and a crash rate threshold of 25 crashes/mile. This threshold was set based on the FDOT statewide average crash rate for arterials and collectors (using the 2014 CARS database). The bicycle/pedestrian crash rate map used 2010 to 2014 data and a crash rate threshold of 5 crashes/mile. This threshold was set based on the 25th percentile of segment crash rates in the Region.

Maps of both the vehicle and bicycle/pedestrian crashes by county and Region are included in the attached Transportation Screening Criteria maps.

Existing Infrastructure

Connecting existing bicycle, pedestrian and transit systems to create a complete streets transportation network is a key component of the established goals of the Complete Streets program and capitalizes on corridors in which local communities have already invested.

Connection to Regional Bicycle and Pedestrian Trails

Establishing connections between bicycle and pedestrian trails and on-road bicycle and pedestrian facilities can provide seamless expansion of the bicycle/pedestrian network. The Transportation Screening included a map showing roadway segments which connect to existing bicycle and pedestrian trails. The map was developed using data from the MetroPlan Orlando 2040 LRTP and supplemented with trail data from participating counties.

A map of roadway segments touching a bicycle and pedestrian trail by county and Region is included in the attached Transportation Screening Criteria maps.

Roadway Connectivity (Intersection Density)

Roadway connectivity along each corridor can be crucial to the potential walkability of an area and its readiness for a Complete Streets project. This map was created by counting the number of intersections along each segment in the network and dividing by the length of that segment. The roadway network used for this analysis was obtained from each of the three counties in the MetroPlan Orlando Region. A threshold was obtained using the 85th percentile intersection density.

A map of roadway segment connectivity by county and Region is included in the attached Transportation Screening Criteria maps.

Transit Service

Having a good understanding of the transit service along and across each potential Complete Streets candidate corridor is important to understanding the readiness and investment already made in these corridors. Using LYNX April 2015 data, each bus route and its half mile buffer was mapped. The roadways falling within this half-mile buffer were counted in this screening criteria.

Additionally, a second transit-related criterion was developed to include those corridors which experience high service frequency. Using LYNX 2015 schedule data, high frequency bus routes (30-minute or less service headways) were mapped. These corridors generally have higher transit usage and can point to corridors which could benefit significantly from Complete Streets investments.

Maps of both the existing LYNX routes (with half-mile buffer) and high transit frequency routes by county and Region are included in the attached Transportation Screening Criteria maps.

Roadway Compatibility / Permeability

Some roadways in the three-county Region predominantly serve through trips, are high speed facilities and will likely remain this way. These roadways are more difficult to retrofit as a truly Complete Street. One of the most common issues among these roadways is the permeability and cross access of the street. In other words, travel across these roadways is difficult and, in some cases relatively unsafe in comparison to lower speed, lower volume roadways in the Region. This is not to say that high speed, high volume corridors are not critical to safe multimodal travel. These corridors play an especially important role in the transit network. Yet, these roadways also pose considerable constraints in creating an environment where people can walk and bike safely and comfortably.

Lending attention to the readiness of existing infrastructure for complete streets projects also helps in identifying more cost effective complete streets project opportunities in the Region. While this criterion is important to the overall Transportation Screening, it is to be noted that this criterion only makes up one data point for the overall screening.

Posted Speed

The speed of a roadway can greatly affect the ability to cross a roadway in a safe and convenient manner. Research suggests that once speeds are decreased from 40 to 30 mph, chances of a pedestrian surviving a crash are increased by 3.5 to 5.5 times¹. In addition, the speed along a roadway can affect the comfort of pedestrians and bicyclists along a roadway. Using the FDOT 2014 Roadway Characteristics Inventory database, roadways with posted speeds of less than 35 mph were mapped to identify the streets that are more ready for complete street improvements.

A map of the segments with posted speed below 35 mph by county and Region is included in the attached Transportation Screening Criteria maps.

Traffic Volume less than 20,000 Vehicle/Day

Traffic volumes also significantly affect the ability of users of all modes to cross the street. Using the FDOT 2014 Roadway Characteristics Inventory database, roadways with relatively lower traffic volumes were mapped to further identify roads with better permeability than most. The volume threshold of 20,000 vehicles per day was chosen due to the fact that more immediate strategies can be taken on roadways that have 4-lanes or fewer, especially on 4-lane roadways with volumes of 20,000 or less.

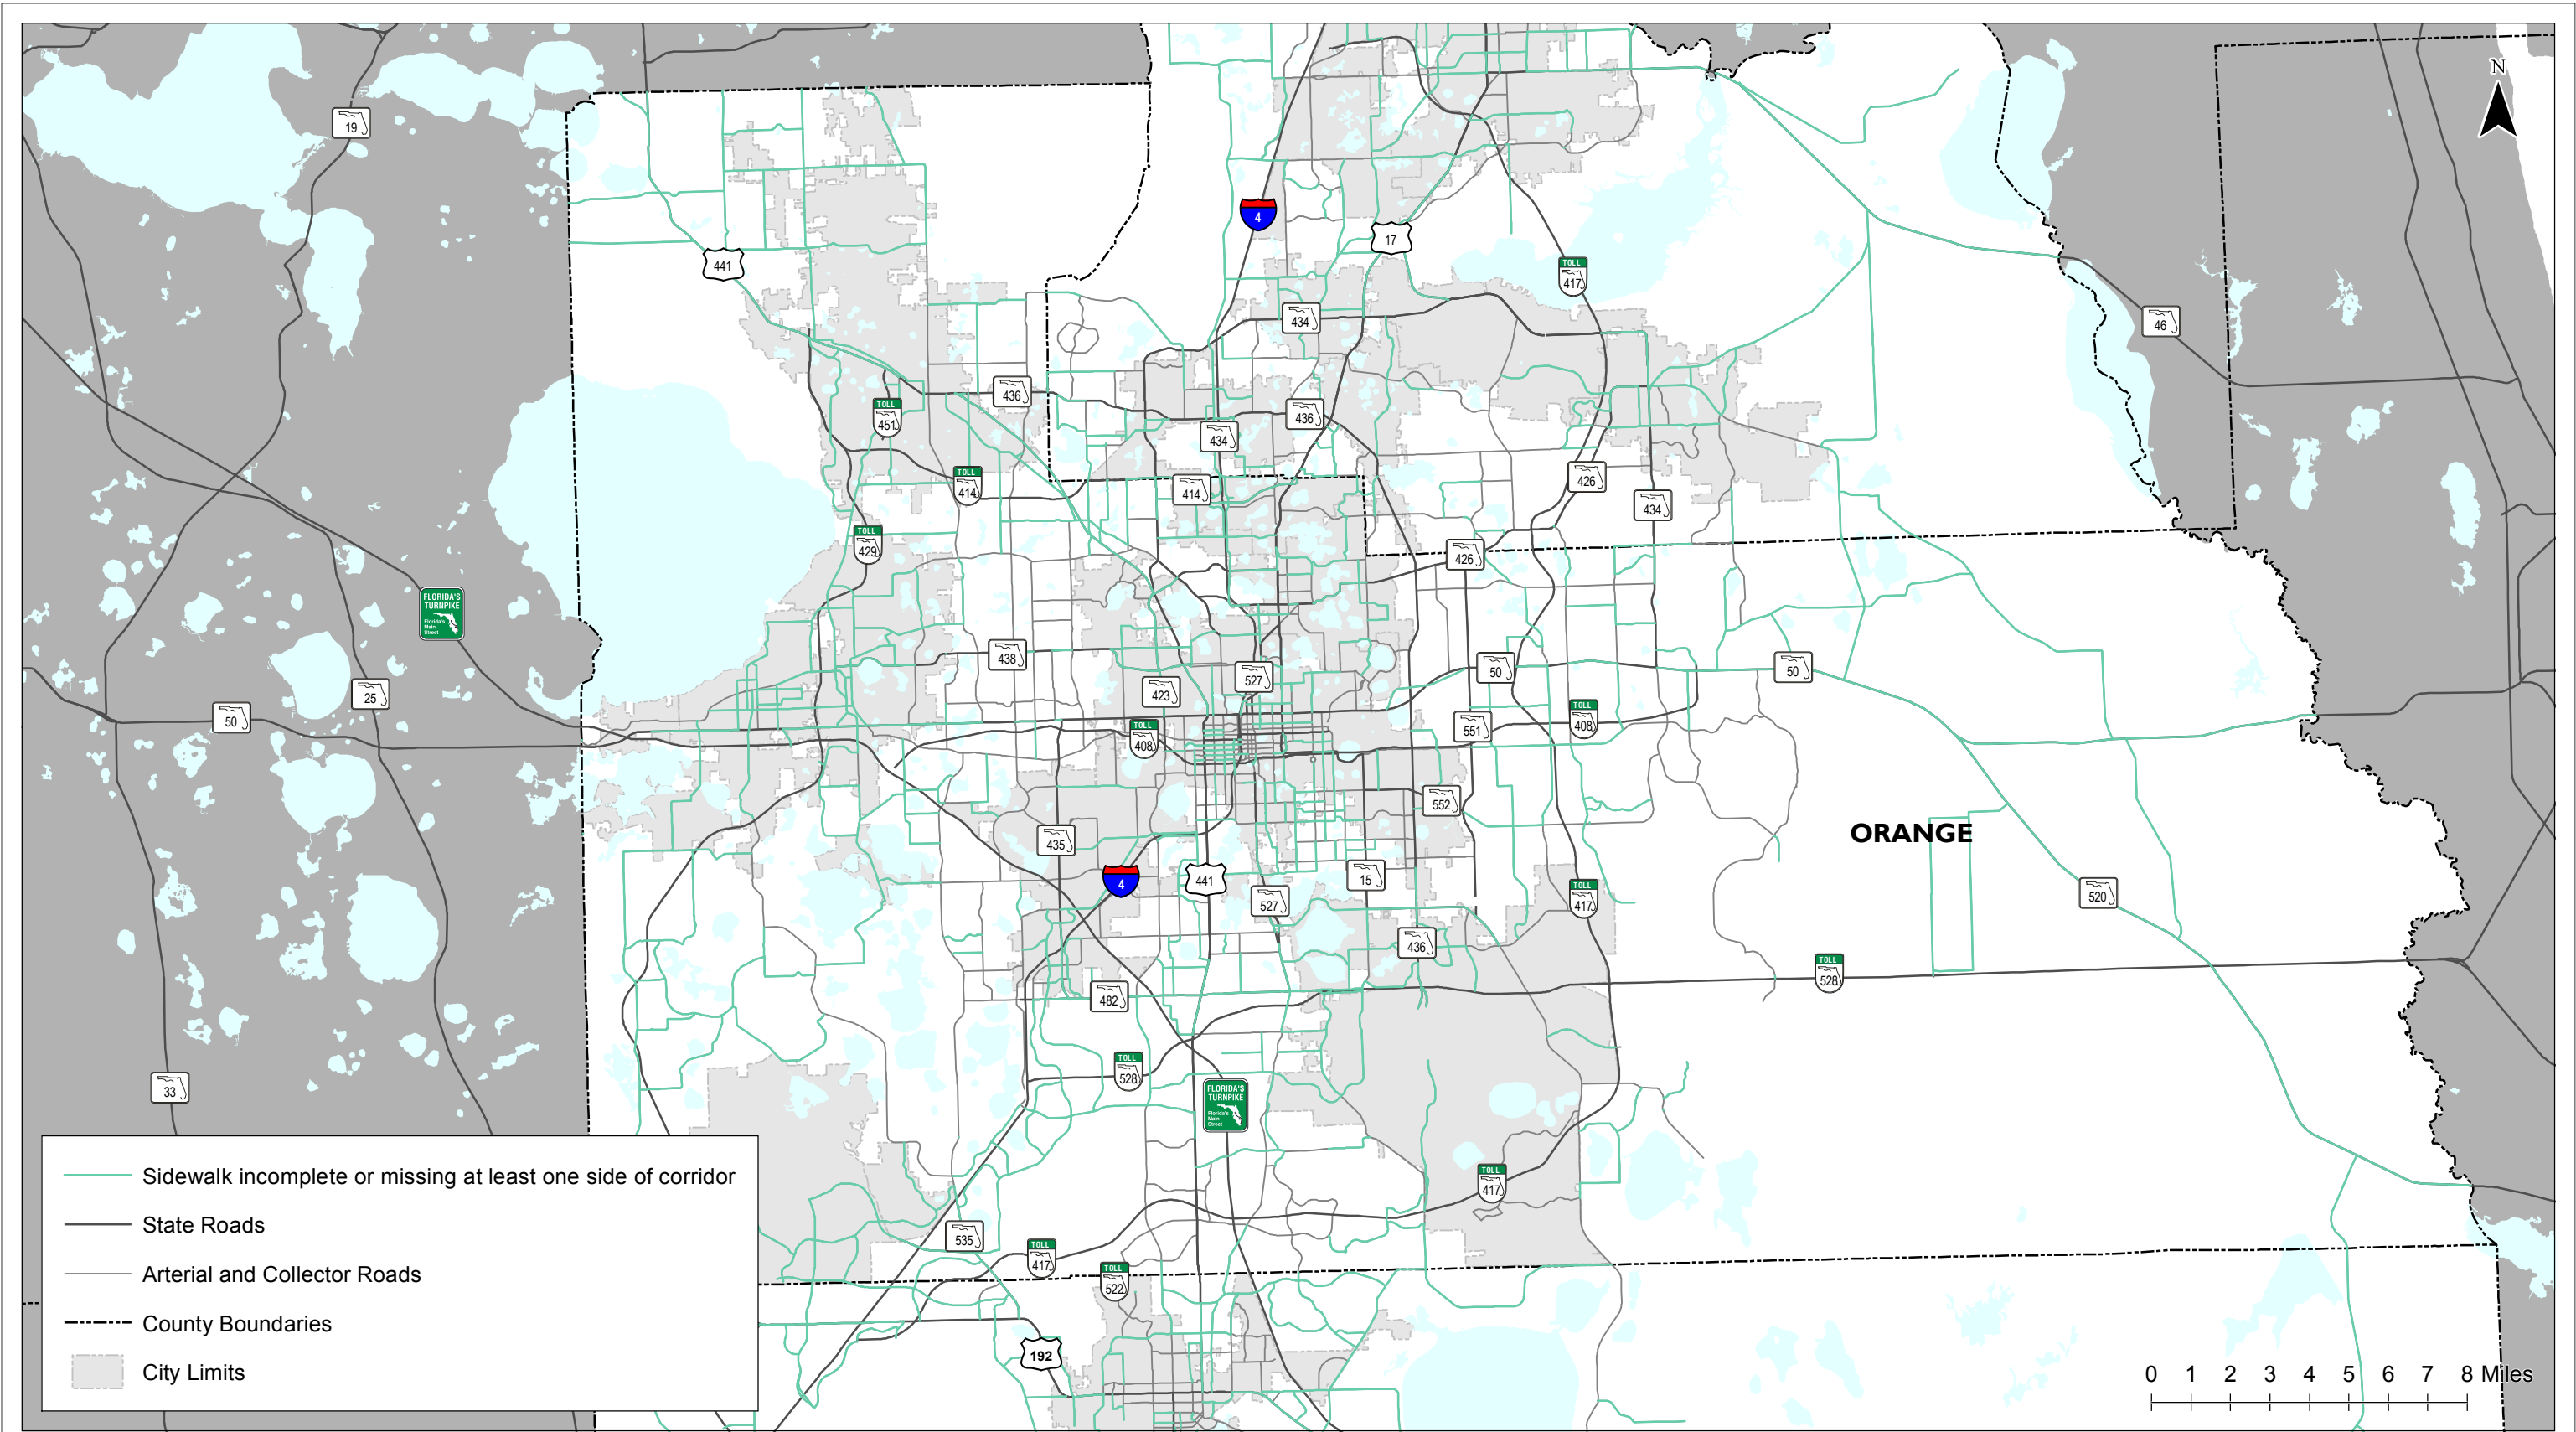

A map of the segments with volumes of less than 20,000 vehicles per day by county and Region is included in the attached Transportation Screening Criteria maps.

¹ Relationship between Speed and Risk of Fatal Injury: Pedestrians and Car Occupants, D.C.Richards, UK Dept. for Transport (2010)

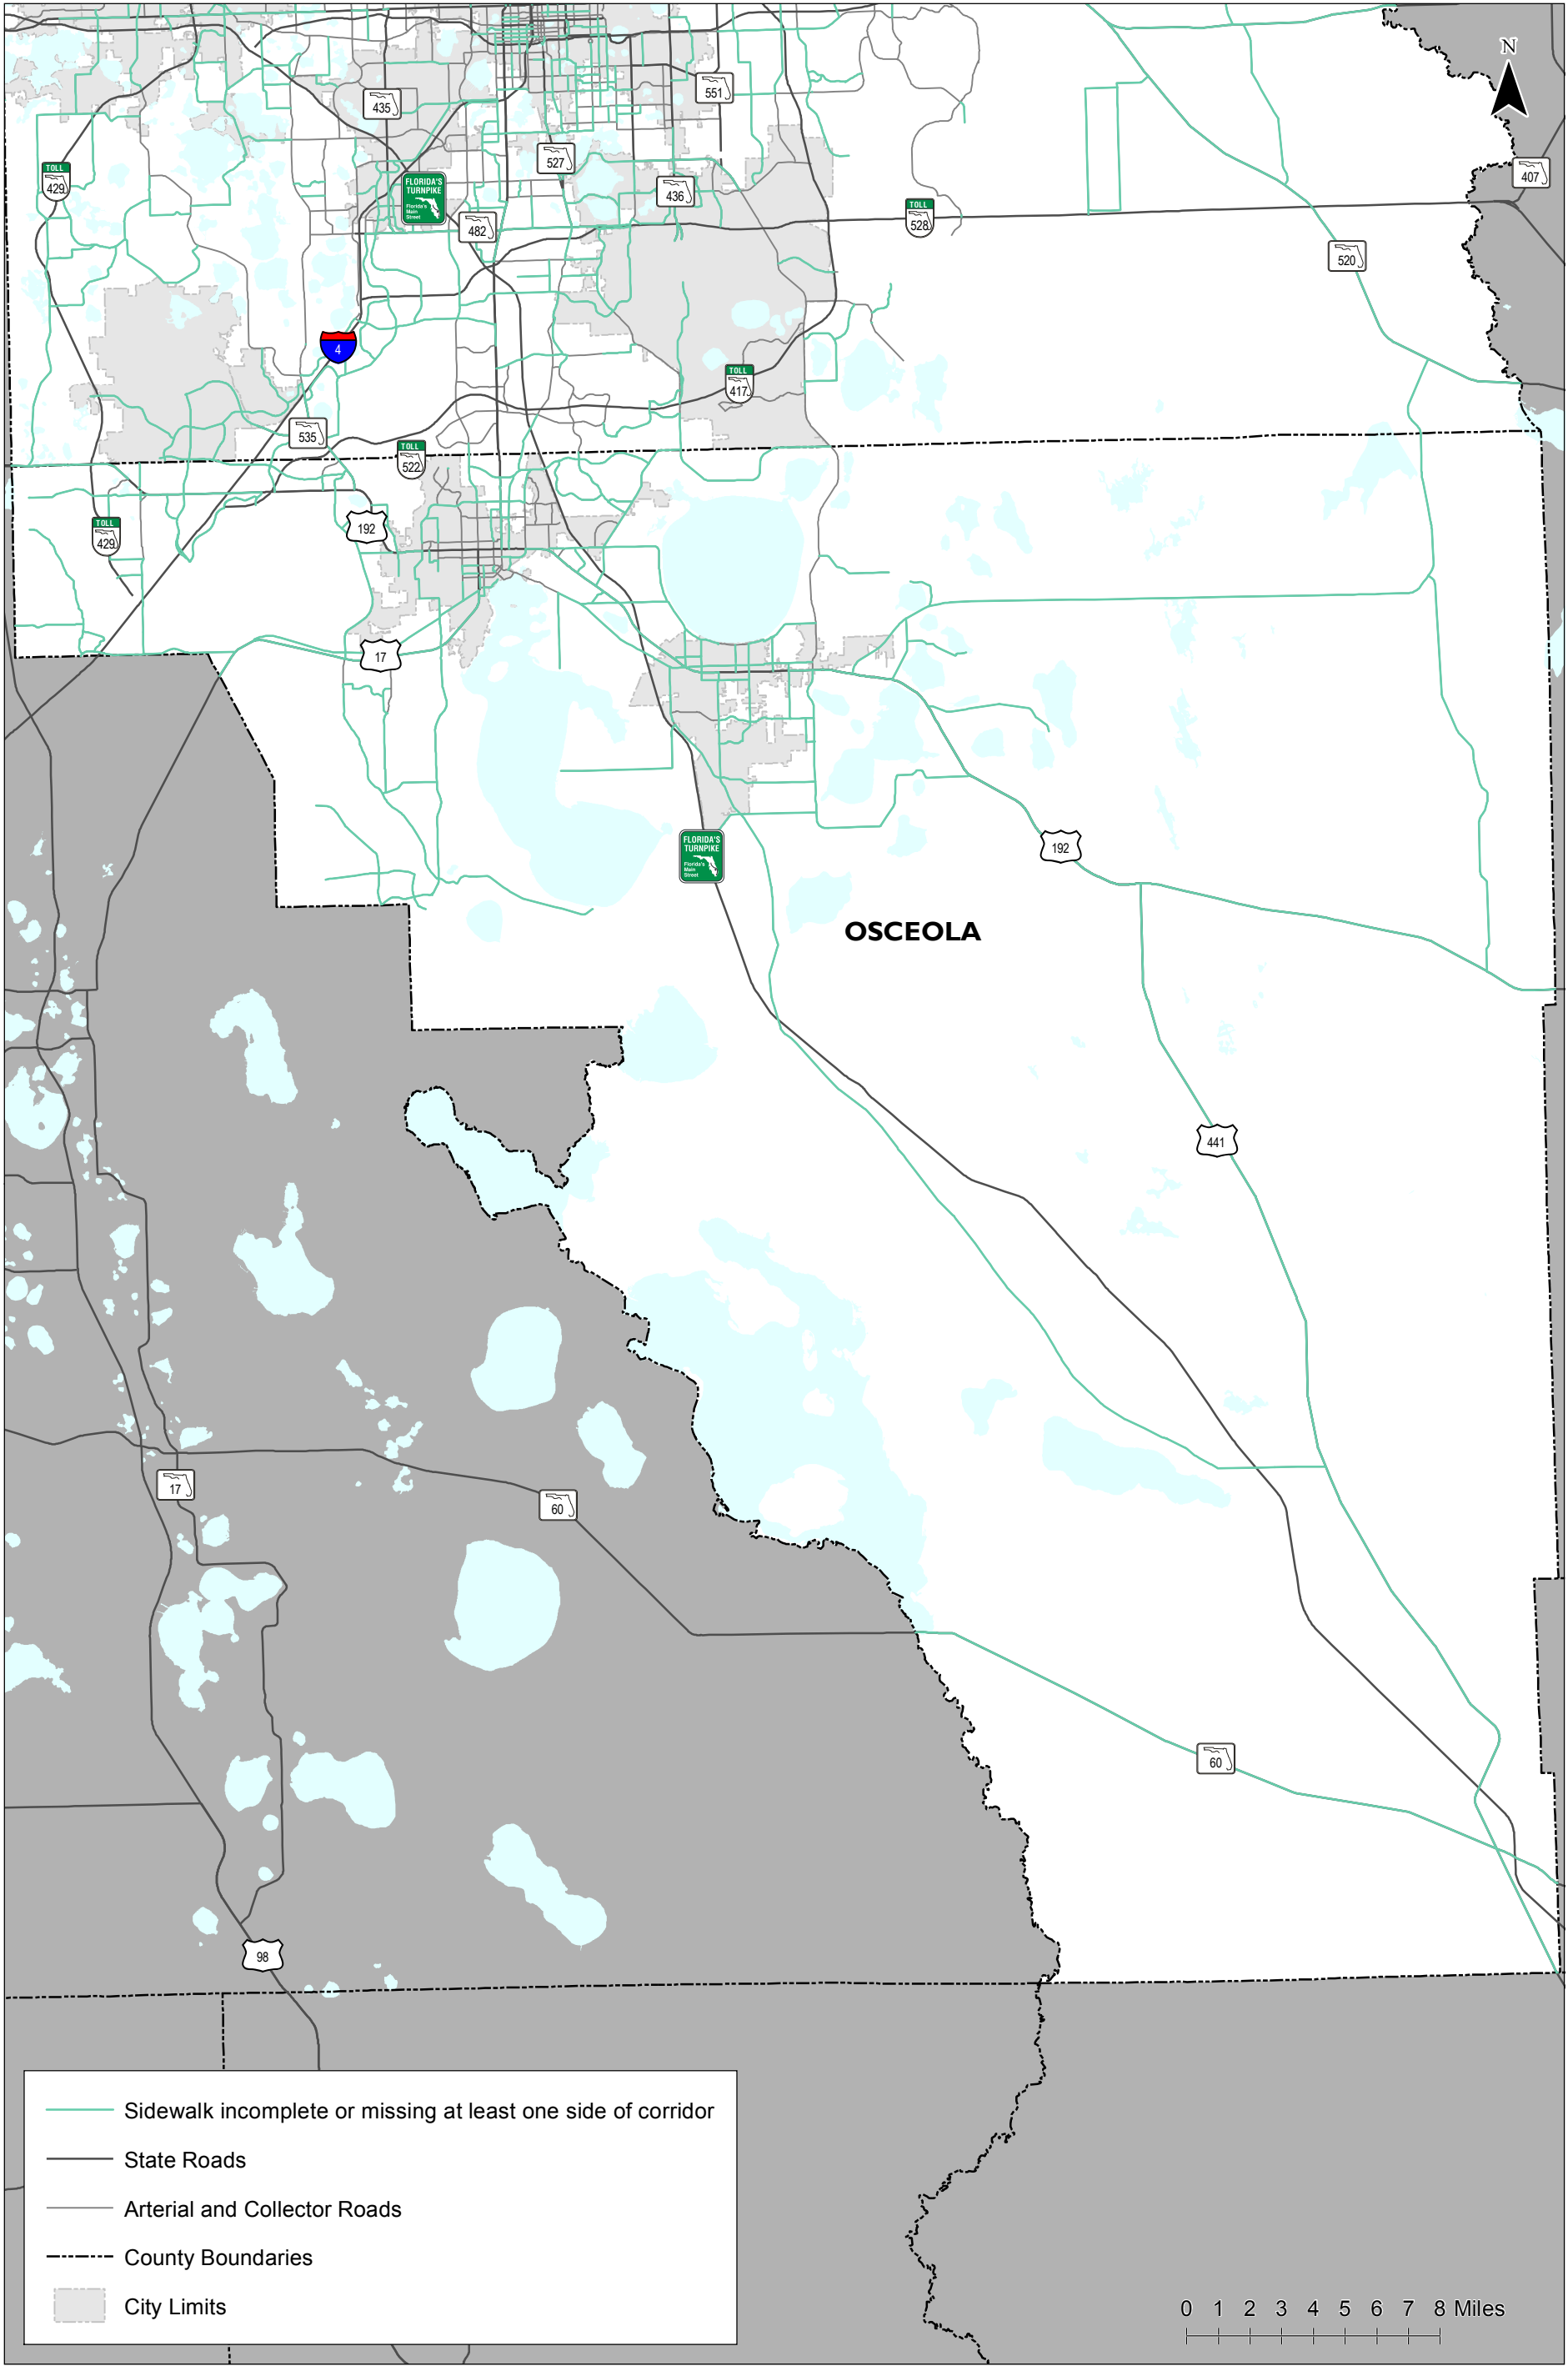

Freight Traffic Less than 5 Percent

Complete Streets projects commonly incorporate changes that narrow vehicle travel width and tighten curb radii. For this reason, corridors with high volumes of freight traffic are not as conducive to Complete Streets project implementation. Using the FDOT 2014 Roadway Characteristics Inventory database, roadway segments with truck traffic of 5% or less were mapped.

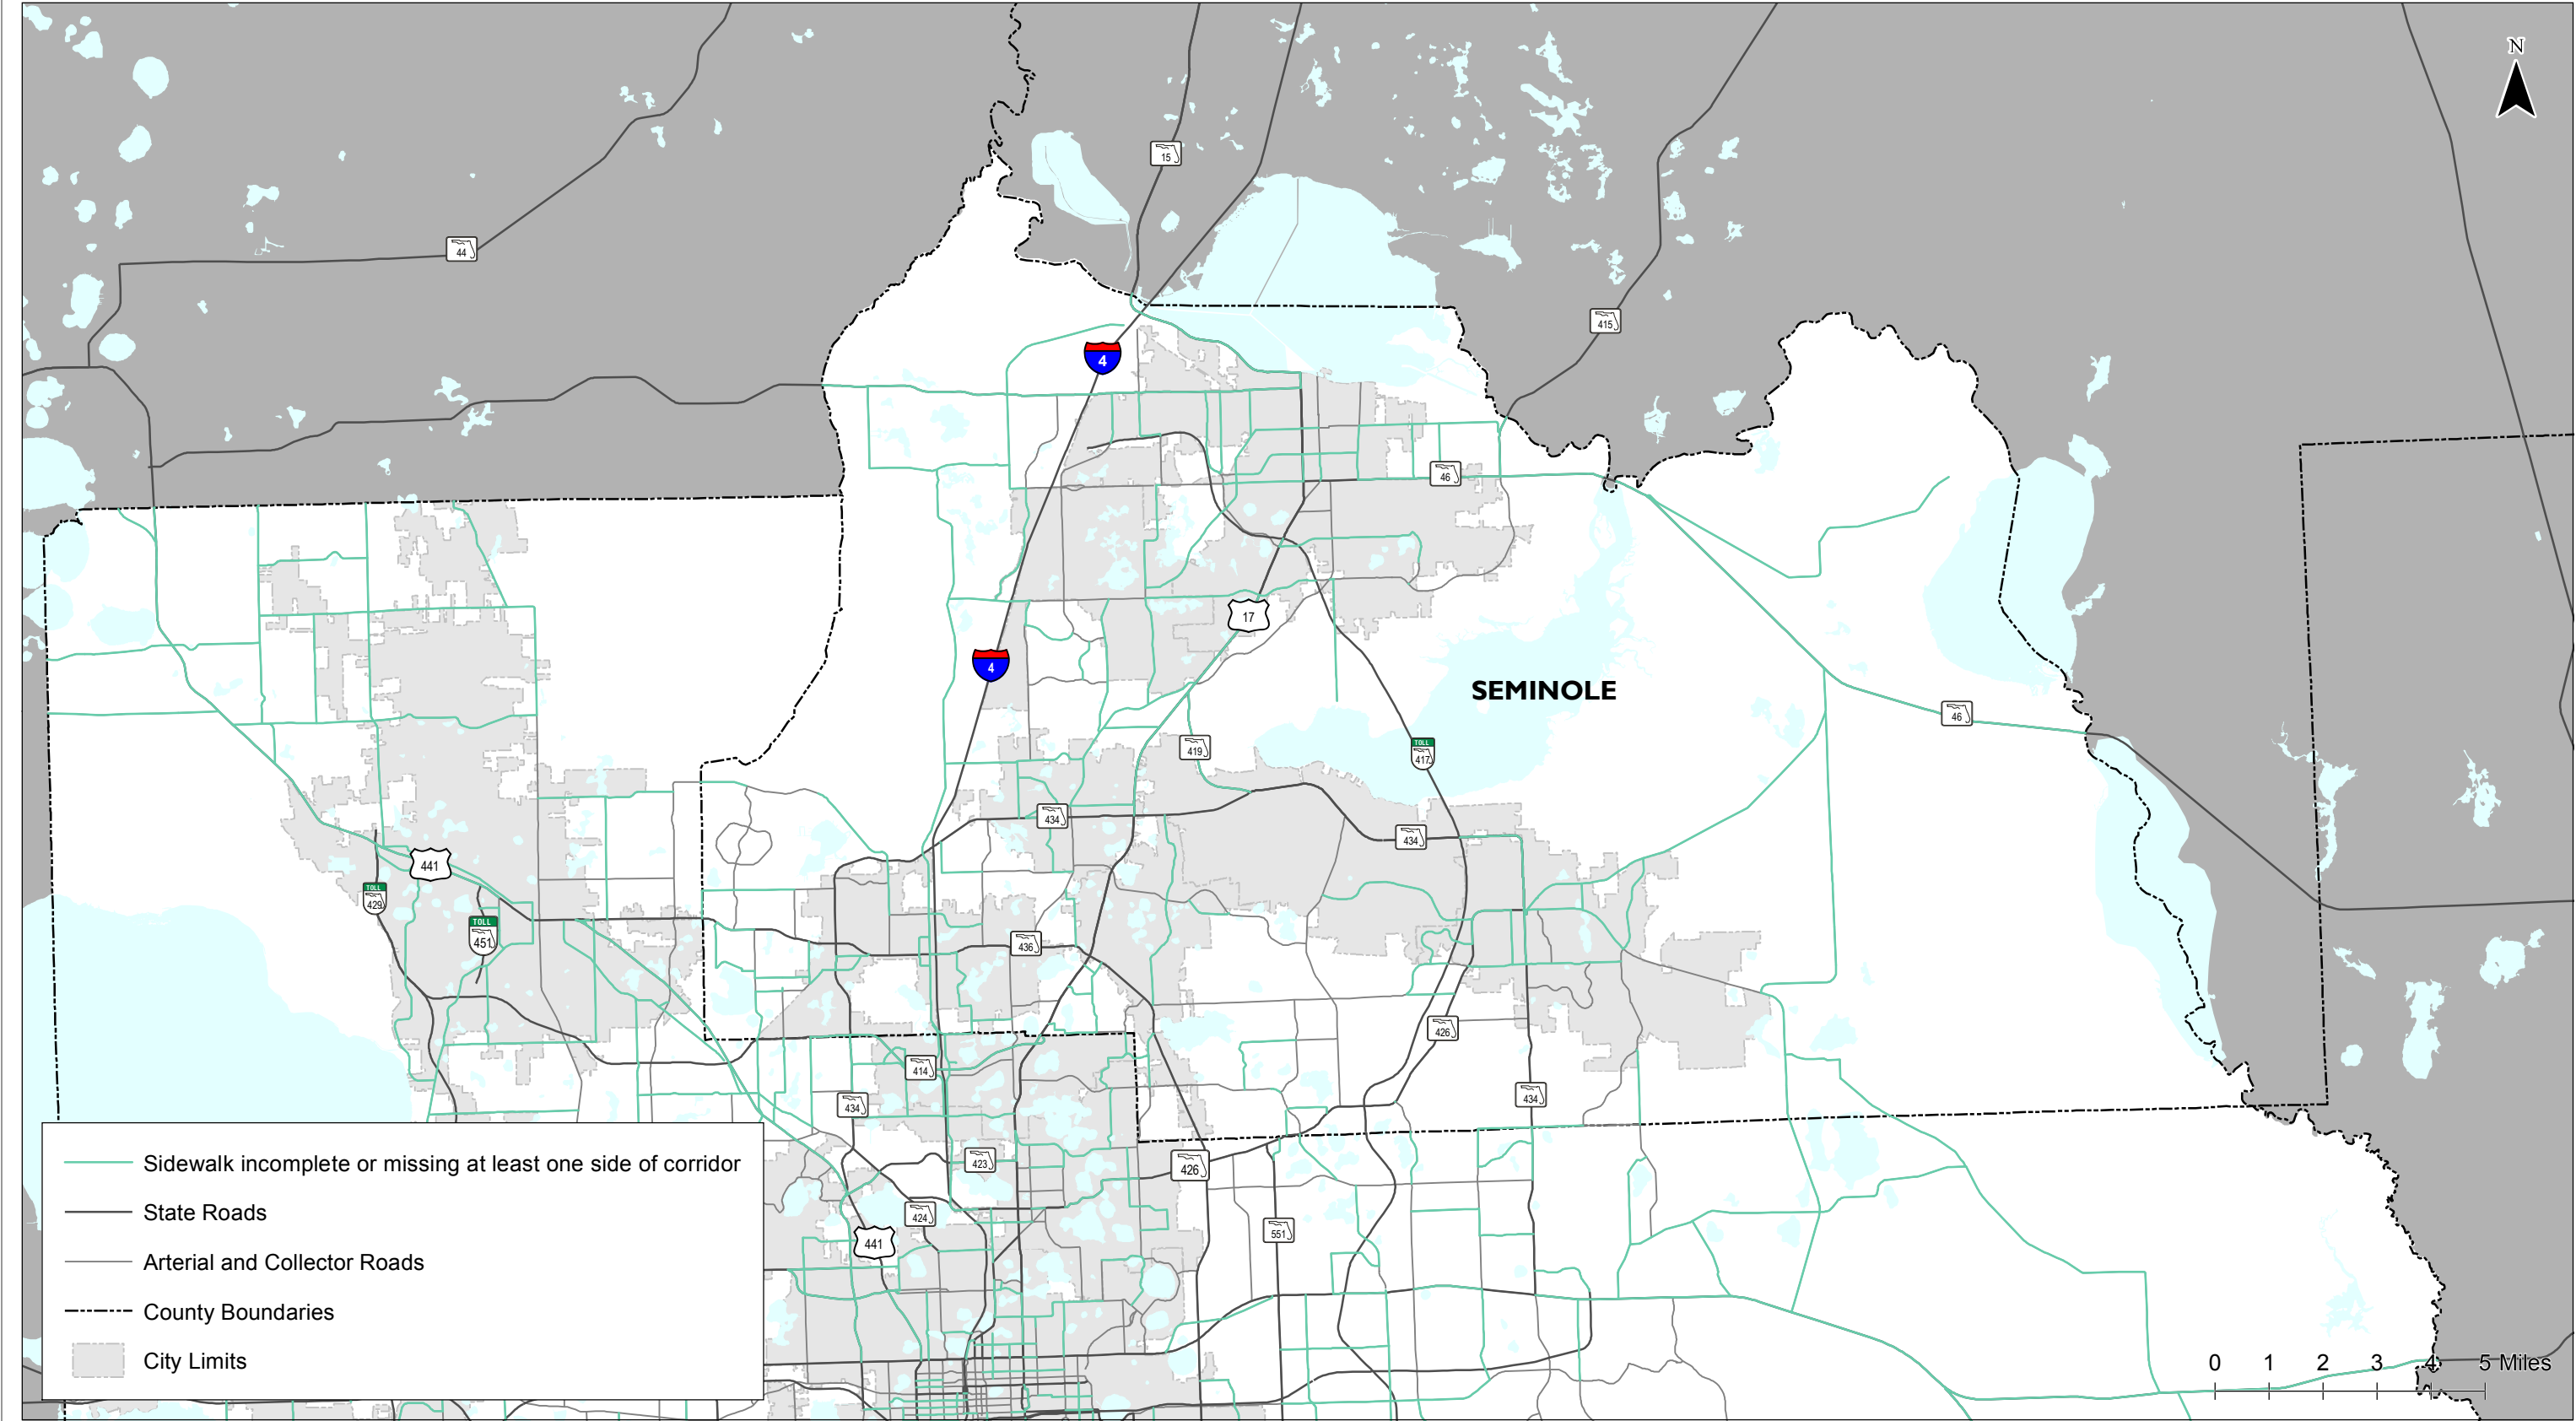

A map of the segments with truck percentage of 5% or less by county and Region is included in the attached Transportation Screening Criteria maps.
